

Daniel L. Eggers

Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer

Profile

Daniel L. Eggers is the executive vice president and chief financial officer for Constellation. In this role, he is responsible for leading the execution of all financial activities for the Constellation business. He serves on the Constellation Executive Committee, which sets strategy and direction for the company.

Constellation is the nation's largest supplier of clean energy with more than 32,400 megawatts of generating capacity from nuclear, wind, solar, natural gas and hydro assets. The company produces about 10 percent of America's emissions-free energy, making it a leader in addressing the climate crisis and an indispensable partner to businesses and state and local governments with carbon-reduction goals.

Eggers also co-leads Constellation's data center customer business development initiatives, working to ensure that the company's clean energy centers are poised to power the AI boom. He was named to Institutional Investor's "Best CFO" rankings for the utilities sector in 2023 and 2024.

Professional Background

Previously, Eggers served as senior vice president of Corporate Finance for Exelon Corporation, where he led Exelon's management of investor relations, treasury, corporate planning, corporate financial operations, and insurance. He and his team served as a key interface between Exelon and the financial community, including investors and rating agencies, and were responsible for communicating the company's financial, strategic, operation and regulatory goals and results. He also served on Exelon's Executive Committee.

Eggers joined Exelon in 2016 as senior vice president of investor relations. In that role, he developed and managed strategy and message content for external financial communications including earnings materials and other investor presentations. He served as the primary interface with Exelon's institutional investors and 21 sell-side analysts. In 2018, Eggers was named a top IR professional in the utilities sector by Institutional Investor.

Prior to joining Exelon, Eggers was a managing director at Credit Suisse in the Investment Banking division, based in New York. Eggers served as a member of the Equity Research department where he covered regulated utility, integrated power and independent power producer stocks, including Exelon. He also served as co-head of U.S. Energy Research and had macro coverage responsibilities for the power sector as well as wind energy and carbon policy. Over his 18-year career at Credit Suisse, Eggers also held roles in equity research covering other energy related sectors.

Community Work

Eggers serves on the board of director of Downtown Partnership of Baltimore, an organization committed to ensuring that the downtown experience is safe, hospitable and memorable. He also serves as an advisory board member with FM Global, a commercial property insurance firm. Additionally, Eggers is on the Constellation Foundation which was established to expand the company's philanthropic mission and further its commitment to investing long term in the communities it serves.

Educational Background

Eggers received a bachelor's degree in Finance from Texas Christian University and received the Chartered Financial Analyst designation in 2000. He also completed the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Reactor Technology Course in 2023.